

Very Camden Christmas Monologues

Monologue 1: "Christmas in Camden County"

(Excited and cheerful)

"Christmas in Camden County is my favorite time of year! I mean, just look around—everything is so cozy and bright! The streets are lined with lights, and the tree in the square? It's huge! My family always goes to the Christmas in the Park in St. Marys. The whole town shows up, and everyone's smiling. It's like we all know each other, even if we don't. There's just something about Christmas here that feels special—like the whole county is one big family. I wouldn't want to spend Christmas anywhere else!"

Monologue 2: "The History of Camden Christmas"

(Thoughtful and proud)

"You know, Camden County has been celebrating Christmas for a really long time. I looked it up—since 1777! Can you imagine Christmas back then? No twinkling lights, no cars, probably no big Christmas tree like we have now. But I bet the people were just as excited as we are. They would've gathered by the fire, maybe gone out to chop wood or make homemade gifts. And you know what? That's kind of cool. It makes me feel like we're part of something big, something old, like we're celebrating Christmas the way they always have, just with a little more sparkle!"

Monologue 3: "Wishing for Snow"

(Playful and hopeful)

"I've been wishing for snow in Camden County for as long as I can remember. Everyone says it hardly ever snows here, but I don't care—I'm still hoping. Just once, I want to wake up on Christmas morning, look outside, and see everything covered in white. We could build snowmen, have snowball fights, maybe even make snow angels! My mom says it would probably melt by noon, but that's okay. Even just a little snow would be perfect, don't you think? I guess until then, I'll just keep dreaming... but hey, Christmas is the time for miracles, right?"

Monologue 4: "A Camden County Tradition"

(Warm and nostalgic)

"Every year, my family has this Christmas tradition—we drive out to the Crooked River and have a picnic. I know it sounds weird—Christmas at the river—but it's something my grandparents used to do, and we've kept it going. We bring hot cocoa, blankets, and sandwiches. My dad plays Christmas music on the radio, and we watch the boats drift by. It's peaceful, and it reminds me of how beautiful Camden County really is. I love the rivers, the woods, and the quiet moments. It's not the typical snowy Christmas, but to me, it's perfect."

Monologue 5: "Camden Christmas Magic"

(Soft-spoken and sweet)

"There's something magical about Christmas in Camden County. It's not just the decorations or the songs, though I love those too. It's the feeling. Like when you walk through the square and see all the families together, or when we sing carols and everyone joins in. It feels like the whole county comes alive with Christmas spirit. Even the trees and rivers seem to sparkle a little more. I think Christmas is a time when people really show how much they care for each other. And here in Camden County, you can feel that love everywhere you go."
